Washington, July 14.—The Constitution of this morning contains a copy of a dispatch from the State Anditor, Hon. Jesse K. Dubois, and Hon. A. W. Mack, relative to the funding of a portion of the McAllister and Stebbins bonds in the office of the State Agent at New York. These letters are full and circumstantial, and from them the public will be able to arrive at conclusions based upon a full knowledge of the whole matter. It will be seen, as we have heretofore stated, that the State will not lose anything by the transaction—that the State officers have refused and will continue to refuse to recognize the validity of the new bonds, or to pay the accruing interest upon them—that the claim now stands upon precisely the same footing that it did before, and that the party holding it will finally have to accept settlement on the terms heretofore offered by the State, It will also be seen that the order of the

Gen. Cass on the Back Track. WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Constitution

The next Movements in Italy.

Dr. Wienburg, a surgeon attached to Garibaldi's corps, writes to his friend Dr. Wise editor of the Israelite at Cincinnati, some items of significance as to the future movem of asginacance as to the future movements of the allied forces. He says:

"Garibaldi is now in the position to take possession of the two railroad lines centering in Verona, and certainly will abortly accomplish the feat. Prince Napoleon comes from Tuscany with 25,000 to 35,000 troops to clear Modena of the Austrians, and operate east of Mantna and Verona in connection with Garibald. Prince Napoleon's march will be from Modena and Regiot to Mirandala, Padan and Vincenza in the rear of Mantna and Verona. Garibaldi will start north from Peschiera, go north on the Eastern shore of the Garda Lake, double Verona, and unite with Prince Napoleon somewhere in Vincenza. This operation, in connection with a naval demonstration somewhere about Venice, will and must result in the entire occupation of the Province of Venice by the allied forces, while the Austrians will be stered away in Mantna and Verona.

"16 Kossuth lands in Fiume, and succeeds to revolutionize Hungary, the Allies will be in two months nearer to Vienna than the Austrians are at present to Milan."

We protest against the assumption on the part of "Malakoff," that a bearer of dispatches from Paris to Turin must necessarily go around by the way of the Mincio, in the present uncertain state of the reads thereacoust, or that such an envoy would find it entirely easy to scale the walls which have balfied so large a portion of the English Pressure when added by English diplomacy.

Times, and "Malakoff," its Paris correspond great battle of Solferino from an eminence of cupying politions in the French camp at Castig-lione. Our readers have already seen Mr. Ray-mond's description of so much of the conflict as he was enabled to see. We subjoin his ac-count of the terrible scenes witnessed among great battle was then going to in the plain before Cashghione; and going at once to the summit of some old fortifications, which once defended the town, we sould she wish our glasses the smoke of the engagement. We lost no time in pushing forward, although we were told that we could not reach Castiglione because the roads were completely occupied by artillery held in reserve. We went on, however, continuing to meet carriages and carits laden with wounded, and passing the Frunch tamps of the previous night, came to a point at about half a mile from the town, where a park of artillery wagons was defiling from their camp into the road. Watching our chance we drove in between two of the wagons, and so entered the town under cover of the enormous cloud of dust which they raised. The main street was densely crowded with carts, carriages, horses, donkeys, ozen, soldiers, suttlers and persons and animals of every description. We pushed our way, without hindrance, directly past the house marked as the Quartier Generale, or head-quarters of the Emperor, and were thus within the camp. We had gone but a short distance when we came to where the goest procession of the wounded was turning down a cross street to a clurch which had been taken for a hospital. It was certainly the most dreadful sight I ever saw. Every conceivable kind of wound which can be inflieted upon men was here exhibited. All who were shie to do so, were obliged to wak—the wagons and animals at command to where had a firripped away the clothing which, chafed and made them worse. It saw one man walking along with a firm step and a residue in —anker to his wait; that having a boulet wound upon his side, an ugly gash along his cheek, and a deep bayonet thrust received from behind, —nuked to his wairt, and having a bullet wound upon his side, an ugly gash along his cheek, and a deep bayonet thrust received from behind, in his shoulder. Most of those who were walk-

These who were more severally injured rode upon donkeys or in eartis,—still a few were carried upon flattresses and men's shoulders. But these were mostly officers, and nearly all I saw carried in that way were so badly wounded that their recovery is searfely possible. One had both hit legs crushed by a cannon ball. Another had received a ball in his thigh, and was evidently suffering the most intense agony. Many of those whose wounds were in their legs were had to a hadron and the search of the searc by their side, were apparently unconacious, and seemied dying. Then would come carts, large and small, earrying three, five, and some of them ten or fifeen each. A steady stream of them ten or fifeen each. A steady stream of these ghastly victims of the battle of the day poured surrough the fown. I stood in the crowd by the side of them as the sad procession parspoured arrough the town. I stood in the crowd by the side of them as the sad procession passed along, and watched it at this point for over an hour. It was not interrupted for a moment,—except now and then by a crowd of prisoners,—and it continued thus from about 10 in the morning, when it began to flow, until I left the street, long after dark. Every church, every lange hall, every private house in the town has been taken for the service of the wounded.—Those whose injuries are slight, after having them dressed, pass at once into the ranks and mingle with their comrades. I looked into the church us I passed by. All the seats, railings, &c., had been removed: mattressee of hay had been spread upon the floor, and were completely filled with wounded men, in every stage of suffering and of peril, lying side by side. The surgeons were dressing their wounds; Sisters of Charity and other women were giving them vice and otherwise administering to their confort; but morning, I am sure, will dawn upon a large portion of them relieved forever from the pain. If anything can be more horrible than soldier's life, it certainly is a soldier's cleath. We were unable to arrive even at an approximation of the casualties of the day. All the filters who might have been able to farnish unrect information continued in the pursuit of e enemy, and we were able.

Six or eight times while I stood upon the Six or eight times while I stood upon the street watching the wounded, there came along squads of prisoners taken at various stages of the action. Sometimes there would be only the action four then the work of the control of the contr

tain importance. For example, we learned there the true position of Garibaidi in the Sardisian army, and this position is the very opposite of everything that has been published heretoficial in the sandisian army, and this position is the very opposite of everything that has been published heretoficial in the subject. When, at the beginning of the war, it was proposed to form a corpy of terms come provided in the contempt of volunteers, Gen. de La Marmora short withing the contempt for volunteers and sentiment of contempt for volunteers and their utility. Count Carvur, while sharing his colleague's opinion as to the general mutility is contempt for volunteers and the volunteer service, ystapproved the measure of a political and revolutionary arm, by which to reuse up additional embarrassments for the Austrians; and this was evidently the true of the political and revolutionary arm, by which to take up additional embarrassments for the Austrians; and this was evidently the true of a number of nationalities, governed to the case of the contempt of the cont

pish. It is here the place to speak of the political sentiment of the Italians in connection with Caribaldi. When the name of this officer is mentioned, either at Turin or at Milan, the countenance of the speaker is lighted up, and it requires no great amount of pentralibit of discover that his name is the key to every heart. In fact we have unmistakeable evidence 1830, has been an intimate personal friend of Louis Napoleon. It was when Louis Napoleon and is his cider brother were commanding in the Italian Bevolution of that epoch, that the acquaintance was made. All three met and took oaths together over the Carbonari. Three years ago this geatleman published a pamphlet, which had an immense circulation in Italy, pointing out the duty of Napoleon III. toward the Italian population, recalling the days when the Emperor, yet a boy, commanded Italian patriots, and predicting for him, in such an eventuality, a gorious career, and a still more glorious career in the history of the world.

Soon after the publication of this pamphlet,

Soon after the publication of this pamphlet, its author was invited to Paris, and much to the astonis ment of the ctiquette observing people of the palace, was invited to take up his abode, like some foreign King or Prince, in the Tuilleries. Well, this genetleman, who is a citizen of Bologna, in the territory of the Pope, and an intimate personal friend of Napoleon III., is now the Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs in the Cabinet of the King of Sardina, Count Cavour ad interin Minister of War, signs the papers and reserves the approval of all the acts of the Foreign Department; but the gentleman of Bologna, in fact, conducts the affairs of the Department.

So confident was Austria in her military position that only a few hours before the battle began-her emissaries solicited the neutral powers to abstain from interfering with the progress of the campaign. And no deuts the cuormous preparations which they lad made, and the unquestioned ability of their military officers, to a certain degree justified this confidence. But the physical superiority of the allies, and that spirit of enthusiasm which a just cause alone can inspire, outweighed every advantage.

[From the London Times, June 29.]

There is a period in the lives of Empires, as of Individuals, when the evil they have done bitter that it has long been delayed. Such are the times which have come at last upon the great and powerful empire of Austria. She not only did much evil, but the evil which she did was done upon system and according to precedent. Human beings have, clearly laid before her the different elements of power and success, the spiritual and material, the ennobiling and the degrading, the progressive and the obstructive, and she diliberately chose the latter. By no means negligent of the welfare of the great mass of her audjects. She has contrived to disquat and alienate the feelings of all who rose to the least above the tamest mediocrity, who thought, or felt, or reasoned, or acted for themselves. Physical force was her idel, and as fell down and worshipped it in the dust. By the coarsest methods, by beating with the stick one class of offenders, by imprisoning another and by shooting or hanging a third, Austria contrived to establish throughout her wide dominions the superiority of the baser over the nobler parts of man. She has no literature, she has no aspirations; imagination is banished from her dominions under the penalities of flues, bastinado or imprisonment. The brutalizing system has in it a kind of vitality. It holds wonderfully together. It has even extorted admiration, and become a sorter idol to those who despair of the destuties of humanity, and believe men are sheep to be fleeced, or cattle to be driven by the stronger. But we are just beginning to see the real moral and meaning of all this, and it is too instructive to be passed over in silence.

It was composed, to be aure of different races, all-more or less discontented with the imperial government, all more or less hostile to each other; but it was excellently drilled, it was provided with competent officers, it had experience of all the ordininary manouvres of war, and it was surrounded where ever it went by a most elaborate system of fortification. The time of trial has arrived and how has this senormous machine, to sunnort. Garribald.

The Paris correspondent of the Independent Belge writes, reporting the conversation of

tent officers, it had experience of all the ordininary amouvers of war, and it was surrounded where ever it went by a most elaborate system of fortification. The time of trial has arrived and how has this enormous machine, to support which the empire has been depopulated and the finances rained, born the strain and tension of actual hostilities? It has been ahattered to pieces—not for want of courage and endurance, or techanical sequaintance with military evolutions, but because this vast mas was directed by intelligence of a low order, and was deficent in that activity, self reliance, and power of spontaneous action which distinguish the French soldier. Mind and matter have met together, and matter has been no match for intelligent valor, and the most obstinate endirance has yielded before the onslought of an enemy who knows what victory is and how she is to be woosed and won.

But the defeat of her military system is by no means all free vil with which Austria is threatened. The successors of Joseph II. have concluded degrading soncordat with Rome; they have taken to their heart and counsels what strange and falal race of men who seem destined ever to pursue an end which they are mever allowed to reach. In her intellectual degradation Austria has prostrated herself before this Order of Jesuits. The throne of the young Emperor is surrounded by that ominous band, the sure precursors of the ruin of thrones and the downfall of momarchies. Louis XIV. took them to his heart, and prosperity left him never to return. James II. and Charles X. lost under their advice, the kingdoms of their ancestors; shd, surrounded by them, Francis Joseph seems to be drifting towards a similar consummation. Even at a moment like the present there is hardly a loyal race in the empire that is not diagnated at ecclesiastical tyranny, and the misfortunes bring no relaxation to the miseries of the Frotestant or the Jew. Every province of Austria in the meanwhile groons under the confiscation of its rights and the forfeiture of its privileg baids, the hero of the Roman Revolution, and his great timidity and reserve among women. 'He was once at Nice, when I was there,' said she; "it was during the winter of 1855, if I re-member right; at all events, it was after his re-turn from Peru. Of course I was anxious to have him introduced, and—would you believe Austrian government with absurd tenacity along the ruinous logic of price and folly, and will not yield to the just demands of her subject. "For fear she abould be thought to do so not the more representation of the tenacy the strength instead of the weakness of the Empire, might enable Austria to laugh to scorn the threats of Kossuth or of Klapka, and turn doubtful surjuinities into sincere and valiant friends. The same may be said of the Domina, the same may be said of the Jrol. The old system of fron repression has become an impossibility. Austria may still, if she pleases, be the best of a number of nationalities. There is no doubt of the enthushem which animates not only the army, but thewhole population of Austria in regard to this, ww. Of this id on othere intend to fathom the cause: This will be more fitly done by other and abler hauds.

At every station there are soldiers, recumbent or afoot, officers amdiug incessantly, Genderness of the Guard with fixed bayonets and carbiness slung to their shoulders, scrupptiously meat and clean, and casting piercing glauces at strangers from under the peaks of their brassbound and pointed helms. There are men brought together from every cline, most of them in the unders; gray linencoat of the Austrian. The dark men in light blus hose running into the shoes are Slavonians, or Inngarians, or Croats Samples can be seen and Gloves left at 78 Lake street, pgs-am-diel A. GRAVES. (Suc. to C. T. I offer this Improved Turbine Water Wheel to the publi with the fullest confidence and assurance of its Superiority Over Ali Other Wheels, Without any exception. They are well singled to (and have been tested in) Mills of all descriptions. They give a very stoody and uniform speeds, and are well adapted to very lingh as well as very low beeds and falls. They will work well in back water without any material loss of power, and well in the state of the s to the degree of finish of wheel moder in high heads and falls, and in all cases it is warranted to work up to the power laid down in the table, and to give antisfaction, when properly put up and genred.

He was hauled up by the neck a second time until black in the face, but with like result. Finding that Louis Mauss, Practical Optician, in the face, but with like result. Finding that aothing could be gained by swinging him to the tree, it was resolved that he should be severely whipped. He was accordingly bound to a tree, and whipped unmercifully over the bare back; but he was also proof to this mode of persuasion, all the while cursing his emptors in no very becoming manner. Finding that Hutchings was a plucky individual, the committee determined to hold him until morning, when one or two of the citizens should escort him out of town several miles. This was accordingly done, and the late prisoner made good use of his legs—for he took supper in Du Quoin the same evening. We-duesday, and walked north on the railroad track. Late with Benj. late prissorer made good use of his legs—for he took supper in Du Quoin the aame evening. We-besday, and walked north on the railroad track.

Not long after Graham was killed, the citizens of Sparta took Bevel and Hutchings to an ambrutype gallery, and made them sit for their likenesses, which have been forwarded to Pinkerton, detective of Chicago, and to the Chief of Police of St. Louis.

Atter Hutchings left Sparta, a description of the fellow who murdered an old gentleman from Kentnecky, and then robbed him of usar $2,000, near Carlinville, Illinois, on the 2bth ulti, was received. Illutchings asswers exactly to the description of the murderer. In a day or two after this murder was committed, a resident of Sparta was returning from St. Lonis to Chester by steamboat, and he says that Hutchings came on the beat at the former place, and left at the latter. When arrested in Sparta, the latter individual had on a new white coit, and a new, low-crowned black hat; also, $500 in gold in twenty dollar pieces. These circumstances convinced several persons of Sparta that he was the murderer for which such a larger reward was offered. They accordingly followed him to this town, where they found that he had taken supper, and started up the railroad track on foot. At Tamarboa a man asswering the description of Hutchings, purchased a ticket for Chicago, and offered a twenty dollar gold piece, out of whigh the pay was taken. Six persons are now in hot pursuit of him.

Gus Graham was a noted desperade. He boasted to his friends that he murdered the raftaman in Chester last fall. He was suspected of it at the time, and was arrested, but nothing positive could be proved against him. In a day or two after his rebease, he was waited on by a committee in behalf of the citizens, and ordered to learn the mar being lypached by the citizens of that town for heating here. Since the divorce he threatened to kill his once wife and young daughter upon the first opportunity that presented itself. He was notorously known in Belleville and Brass Founders & Steam Fitters, COOR AND PARLOR STOVES. FULLAGER & SMEETH, TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK, FINISHED BRASS WORK BABBETT METAL, &c.

"Matters have been so terribly mismanaged in Austria during the last ten years that it will be almost miraculous if the empire escapes dissolution. In all the provinces very great dissolution by the serious disturbances in some of them if a chauge is and speedily made in the system of government. The Minister of the Interior still clings to the idea that the principle of strict centralization may be maintained, but the Mayars laugh him to acorn, and openly declare that the present state of things cannot last.

"The feeling in Creatia and Slavonia is by no means good, and it will probably become worse now that Count Jellachia is dead. This gallant Ban nome years ago told me that M. Von Bach has succeeded in transforming sealous patriots into discontented and sallen tax-payers. At such a movient as the present, when the very existence of the empire is at state, the Jepuits, who are behind disc Minister for Ecclesiastical Affais have induced him to give offence to the Ruthenes, a highly loyal Russo-Slavonic race, living in Galica. The Ruthenes, who sumber about 2,00,000 seets, belong to the United Greek Church, and recognize the Pope sa their spiritual paster and master. Their priests, however, address their maker in the Elavonic instead of the Latital languages, and take unto themselves

West is exceedingly reckless in regard to pur-chases. Let the Legislature pass a law com-pelling redemptions and we shall have no longer to pay two per cent. for Exchange, great re-vulsions like that of '57 alone except (From the Clacinusti Price Current, 18th.)

We are now entering upon an interesting commercial period, so far as regards the markets for cereals.

The wheat crop has generally been secured, and it is admitted that the yield is an average one in quantity, and more than an average one in quantity, and more than an average in quality. This much settled, the next question in order is that which relates to prices. What are the prospects? Now wheat is now beginning to move at the West. Little has yet been received rulsions like that of '57 alone excepted. The outrageous swindling which a few manufacturers of "well secured currency" are practising upon the people should not be tolerated. A number of them reside in this city and with all their efforts to "keep shady," we have a very distinct knowledge of all their movements. For the present they keep strictly within the limits ple through our quotations of Exchange, how effectually they are "skinning" the business public. Whether they will be permitted to con-tinue this very genteel and comfortable busiof future movements, and at the reduced rates nobody is disposed to operate except from had to mouth. The trade is in a state of suspense. For some weeks past, prices of flour and wheat have been sustained here independent of seaboard markets; for since the frost excitement, early in June, there has been no shipping margin. But this cannot continue. The interior and local trade cannot much longer sustain prices above the seaboard quotations (relatively)

CINCINNATI LUBBER MARKEY.—The Cincinnat Gazette of yesterday says: "The market has been quite dull this week, the excessive warm weather having had its effect on this as well as other branches of trade. There are about two million feetaof green lumber in the water yet unsoid and dealers do not seem disposed to purchase, as the season for laying in stocks is sometime passed.

LAKE SUPERIOR TRADE.—The following are the statistics of this trade for the month of June received from S. P. Mead, Esq., Superintendent of the St. Mary's Falls Ship Canal:

ATTEMPT TO RAISE THE BARK STARMARD.—The attempt has week to raise the bank B. A. Stanmard was unsuccessful and the tag Owengo returned to port on Sunday. The attempt will be continued by means of lighters.—Detroit Ad.
